

Gargouleto

POTTERY

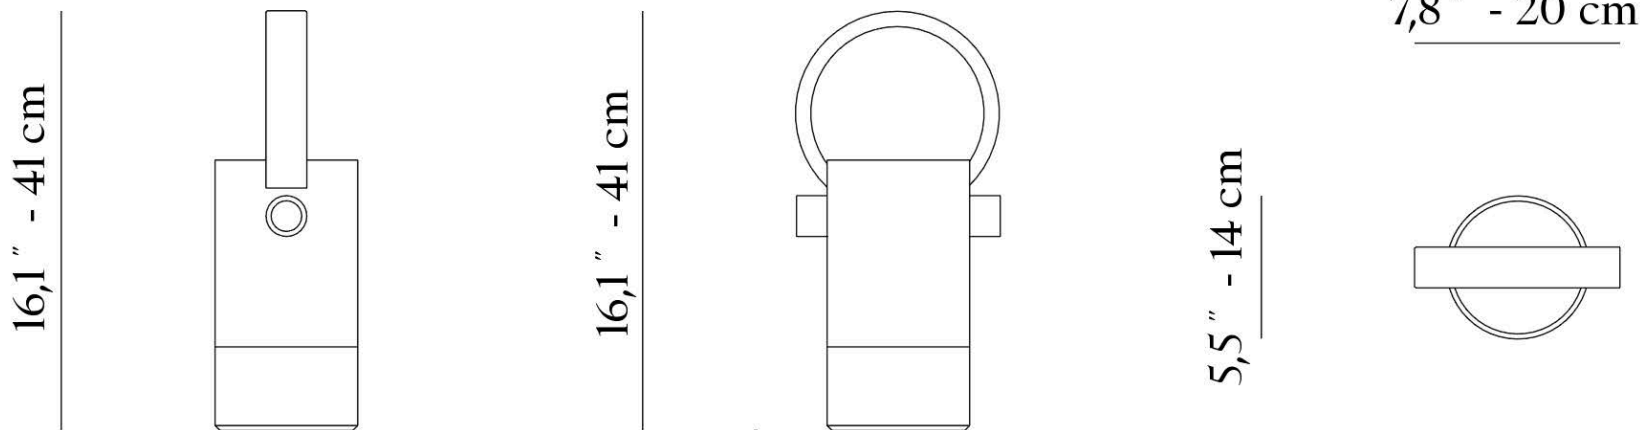

This jug is very emblematic of the South of France. Great names such as Matisse, Van Gogh and Cézanne have included it in their work. Made of clay, this water jug is varnished only on the upper part of the body, making the surfaces waterproof. Stripped down, it retains the large handle and the 2 orifices which characterize its silhouette. Several hours of work are necessary to magnify this piece. The green enamel inscribes this piece in its native Provence.
